BIG WINS FOR ICELAND AGAIN AT BRITISH FROZEN FOOD AWARDS

Iceland has once again proven that it's on top of its game by winning six major awards at last night's British Frozen Food (BFFF) Awards. The brand's tally of successes in 2015 comprised one Gold for Chicken Fillets deliciously flavoured with Jim Beam, a Silver for Bourbon Ribs deliciously flavoured with Jim Beam and a second Silver for Luxury Snowball Dome Gateau. Bronze awards were given for each of Luxury Topped Atlantic Side Of Salmon Fillet with Lemon and Herb Crumb, Breaded Gammon Joint and Wood-Fired Ultra-Thin Pizza With Chicken and Bacon.

Thanks to Iceland's market-leading expertise in frozen food and its total commitment to innovative new product development, the company received the awards at the prestigious BFFF ceremony which was attended by leading industry players. The winning products boast the high quality, flavoursome ingredients and creative edge for which Iceland is renowned and reflect the company's Power of Frozen message to a tee.

Nigel Broadhurst, Joint Managing Director at Iceland, commented: "We are delighted to see Iceland's position as the experts in frozen food reinforced with these prestigious awards. We are really proud of the team that contributes day in, day out to making our offer so original, exciting and high quality for customers. Iceland continues to play the leading role in the growth and development of frozen food in the UK and the coming years look to be our most exciting yet."
